$12,000 Gift To Grossmont Hospital Told

A $12,000 gift for hospital equipment for Grossmont Hospital was received this week. Convair Division of General Dynamics Corporation, through its board of directors, made the fund available.

Palsy Groups To Hold Joint Meet Thurs.

In San Diego as in many cities and towns across the nation, community resources are being mobilized to provide better services for victims of cerebral palsy.

Parents and friends of cerebral palsied will meet Thursday evening, March 15, at 8 o'clock in Benjamin Franklin School auditorium, 4481 Copeland Avenue, East San Diego.

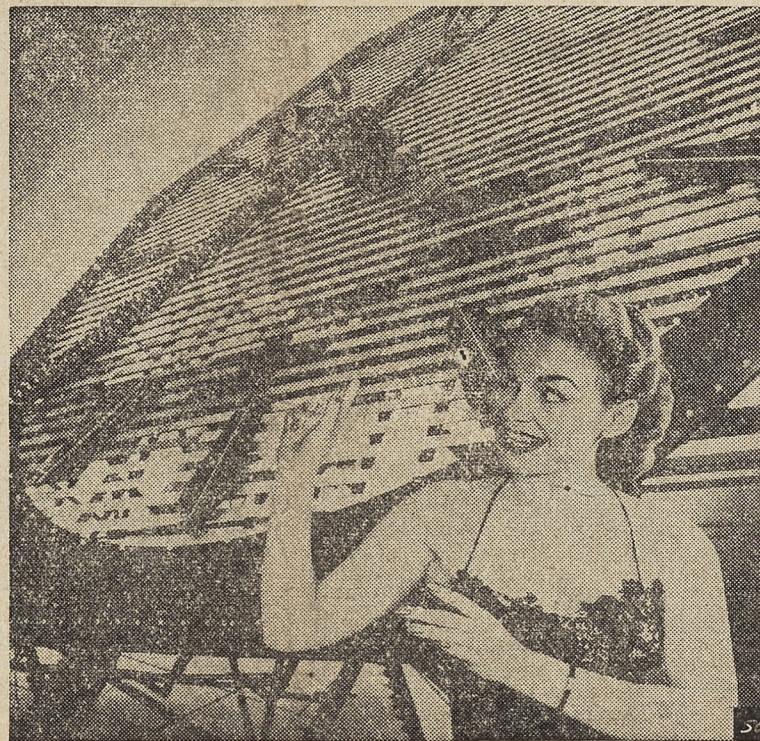

The meeting is sponsored by San Diego Cerebral Palsy Foundation and the local affiliate of United Cerebral Palsy. San Diegans who care, will hear a reassuring lecture on the bright future for the afflicted, by Arthur S. Hill, national education director of UCP.

The ever increasing sums being spent by UCP on scientific research in education, training and professional personnel, promises for the first time a coordinated, scientific attack upon the disorder.

Today, as more knowledge replaces ignorance, suffering is already lessened by improved care and treatment. Hope rests in the general advance of science and increasing support of the American people for their less fortunate fellow citizens.

The lecture will be free to the

The Large And Small Of It

Time waits for no one whether you keep time with the world's largest or smallest timepiece. Shown above is the world's largest clock which is situated atop the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company plant in Jersey City, N.J. It has a face area of 1,963 square feet. In contrast, Mary Collins models the smallest watch in the world, a Le Coultre, with a face measuring less than a quarter-inch square.

Pony Boys Honored At Ball Party

Members of the executive board of the Lakeside Pony League presented a parents and players social March 3 at the Lakeside. The purposes of the get-together was to better acquaint the parents of the Pony League ball players and to explain the job the League is doing.

President of the League, Harry Jackson, presided. After introducing the executive board, Mr. Jackson gave some of the history of the League and told of its future plans, which include lights and dugouts already under construction.

Immediately afterward refreshments and cake were offered to those that were present and the boys who wished obtained their registration blanks.

Several of the board members expressed their disappointment that more parents did not show up for the presentation, but commented that perhaps interest would pick up as the season progressed.

MONKEY SHINESE

Some real monkey business is now going on in San Diego County, with the advent of the newly formed Monkey Club, brain child of Mrs. O. M. Washam who is acting president.

Anyone owning a monkey, or perhaps thinking of obtaining one is cordially invited to the next meeting of the club, which will be held on March 11 at 2:00 p. m., at 4803 Lyon Street.

Dr. Glen Crosbie, former veterinarian at the San Diego Zoo, will be the speaker, and with the amount of interest already being shown in this new organization, a large attendance is expected.

ments and cake were offered to those that were present and the boys who wished obtained their registration blanks.

Several of the board members expressed their disappointment that more parents did not show up for the presentation, but commented that perhaps interest would pick up as the season progressed.

Mayor and Mrs. R. F. Clifton of Dallas City, Ill., are house guests of His Honor's sister, and husband, Mr. and Mrs. George Bowker.

The mayor is enjoying a daily swim in the Bowker bath.

THE SPONTANEAITY OF LAKESIDE RESIDENT ENTHUSIASM FOR THE PROPOSED LAKESIDE PLAZA SHOPPING CENTER WAS REVEALED IN AN INTERVIEW THIS WEEK WITH BILL STARR.

"At first we hadn't thought of a survey, but the demand for leases brought it on. We hadn't anticipated the enthusiastic reaction we have received. We are now able to select the stores we think will best serve the Lakeside area," Starr said.

The survey showed that 90 per cent of the residents here objected to traveling six miles or farther in some case to shop.

The Plaza shopping center will make shopping a one-stop operation, with savings competitive to chain store prices.

Groundwork will start in 60 days, according to Starr, who pointed out "We have signed petitions for improvement of Julian and others streets."

The remaining few leases will be all signed up before the buildings are completed, Starr said. Completion date is expected to coincide with new sewer line installation.

Expressing his enthusiasm Starr said, "We are most appreciative of the welcome being extended to us, and in return we will render service and co-operation with school and utility districts, civic and religious groups in the development of Lakeside."

SUBMITS COSTS

Jack Ramsey, manager of a local TV repair service, revealed that his employer, Allen TV-Radio Service, has submitted cost estimates for the installation of an intercommunication system for the school district.

SCOUTS RE-CHARTERED

Re-chartering ceremonies of Boy Scout Troop 45 were held this week in War Memorial Building.

Sponsored by Optimists, some 30 boys and their parents enjoyed a pot-luck dinner. The new charter was presented by officials from Boy Scout headquarters.

San Diego Cavemen edged the Grossmont thinclads in a relatively close showing on February 28 at Balboa Bowl. The class A Division score was 44 to 59. This was Grossmont's first loss in three outings.

Spearheading the San Diego cinderman was fleet-footed Roscoe Cook, who blistered the 100 yard dash with a record time of 10 flat. Jim Walton, who had previously ran the 100 in 10 seconds, took second place. Cook, sharing double win honors with Bob Staten, outdid Grossmont Chuck Engburg in the broad jump as he leaped 22 feet, six inches.

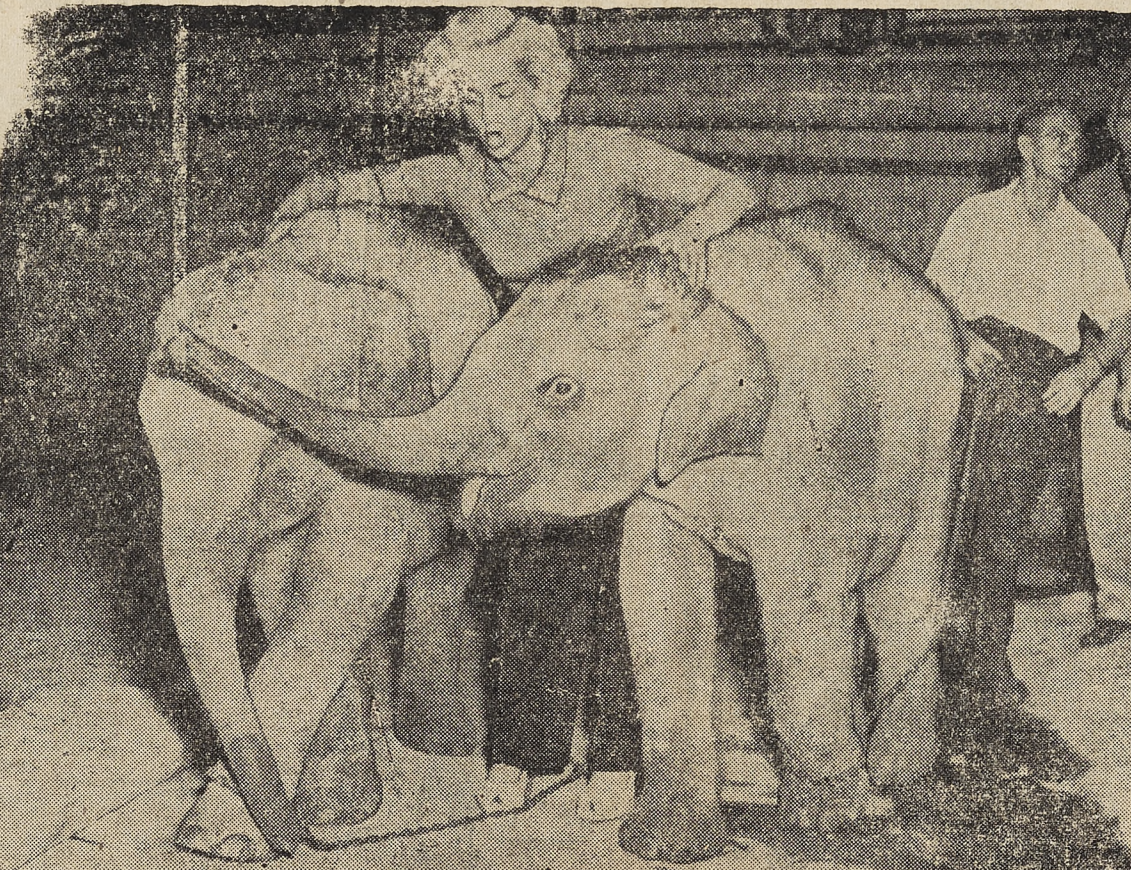

One of the best efforts of the day was recorded by Caver Bob Staten, who captured first in the 180 low hurdles at 20.4 and the 220 sprint at a very good 22.5 clocking.

Grossmont took five of the 12 first places. Highlighting the field events was lanky Jim Wade's toss of 50' 10". Pat Mulligan outraced all competitors in the 120 high hurdles at 10 flat and speedy Jim Griswold outdistanced the Cavers and chopped three seconds off his last effort. His time was 2:01.2.

Grossmont's miler, Jim Briaddy, paced most of the distance but Holt of San Diego, overtook him after three laps and was clocked at 4:48.3.

In one of the closest and most exciting races of the day the Cavemen topped the Grossmont foot foursome with a 1:32.6 time in the 880 relay.

The score in the B Division was San Diego 63 and Grossmont 30. The C score was 40-37, in Grossmont's favor.

The account of a mother's faith and steadfast reliance on the man of God, as Elisha was called, to raise her son from death is told in the Lesson-Sermon on "Man" in all Christian Science Churches Sunday.

When her son became ill and died this great woman, the Shunammite, held so steadfastly to her faith in God, that when Elisha's servant asked her, "Is it well with thee? is it well with the thy husband? is it well with the child? . . . She answered, It is well." (III Kings 4:26). Elisha perceiving her need and her great faith, came and prayed to God and restored her son.

Mary Baker Tddy asks in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" "Does God send sickness, giivng the mother her child for the brief space of a few years and then taking at away by death? Is God creating anew what He has already created? The Scriptures are deifinte on this point, declaring that His work was finished, nothing is new to God, and that it was good" (p. 206).

The Golden Text from Daniel (10:19) counsels, "O man greatly beloved, fear not peace be unto thee, be strong, yea, be strong."

LAW IN ACTION

TELL YOUR HEIRS WHERE TO GET ADVICE

After your death, your heirs may need your advice. As a rule, you don't put much detailed advice into your will. But you should put it in a letter to your survivors.

Get down these ideas for possible advice:

Do you want to warn your heirs not to make any business deal after your death? Insurance companies say that 80 per cent of the lump sum life insurance payments are wasted in the first year after death, perhaps a danger period.

When you die, your bank will not honor outstanding checks. Without proper advice, your heirs should not issue new checks nor pay other debts. They should ask your creditors to file claims with the estate.

When you die, any bank accounts on which you could draw checks will be frozen for a time. Your safety deposit box will be frozen as well. The county treasurer must consent before anyone can use them. Consent is easy to get through the bank or your lawyer.

As a rule, probate proceedings take from seven to twelve months. Meantime, your wife or children can get a family allowance.

In the last two columns we have taken up some things you should cover in a letter to your heirs. You may think of other vital facts about your business and personal affairs that would be helpful.

NOTE: The State Bar of California offers this column for your information so that you may know more about how to act under our laws.

Bread Iron Corrects Deficiencies

Bread's enrichment with iron contributes materially to the needs of those with iron deficiencies, according to Dr. Thelma Porter, Chairman of the Committee on Home Economics and Professor of Food Research at the University of Chicago.

Dr. Thelma Porter

In an address on "Recent Nutritional Research" given before the recent state meeting of the Florida Dietetic Association at Miami Beach, Dr. Porter said that the iron from enriched bread is utilized to the same extent as iron from natural food sources of this element, such as liver.

The enrichment of white bread began in 1941 upon request of health authorities. It consists of the addition of iron and three essential B vitamins — niacin, thiamin and riboflavin — to white bread.

Dr. Porter emphasizes the findings of a report made by Washington University, St. Louis, on the absorption of iron from bread baked with flour which had been enriched with radioactive iron. She pointed out that for those individuals with anemia the absorption has been as high as 45 to 60%, while in the case of those with subnormal iron stores, the rate is from 26 to 38%.

Even in the case of healthy young men and women, Dr. Porter concluded, the rate in some instances is as high as 12% which is a normal absorption rate of iron food.

Today, twenty-seven states have enrichment laws making it compulsory for bakers to enrich white bread with iron and the three B vitamins while twenty-one states are voluntarily complying with federal standards. Estimates by the American Bakers Association indicates that about 90% of all white bread consumed in the United States is enriched.

From Drill to Router

A BROKEN drill may readily be converted into a wood router for small jobs, according to Popular Mechanics. You simply ply grind the end of the bit at right angles to its length. For the average job, a 5/16" drill is about the right size. This router bit works best when it is used in a drill press, but it also can be used in an electric drill.

"Give a bus rider an inch and he'll take a seat!" says Hannah.

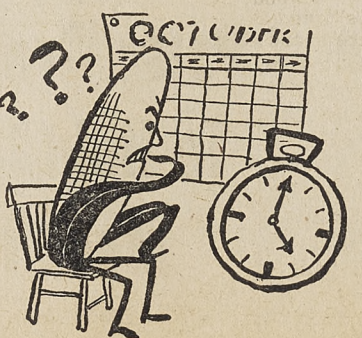

THE FARM CORNER

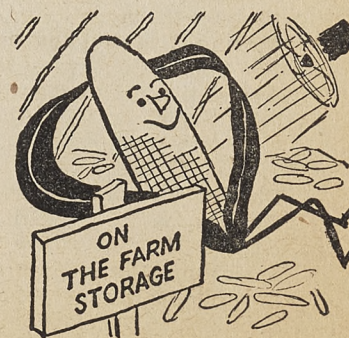

Summer was good, the rain just right. Corn in the field was a pleasant sight. But even though the crop was a honey You had to convert that corn to money.

Weatherman could have spoiled the show. By bringing on some early snow. You checked the moisture in those ears. And every day increased your fears.

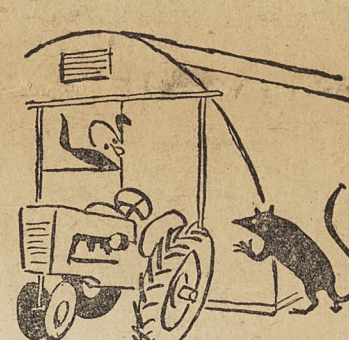

The longer you wait the more you drop. You find you lose too much of the crop. But if you pick too early and wet. You're likely to lose it quicker yet.

But you own a building with a drying fan. And pick it earlier than neighbors can. You store it and dry it without a worry. And you can seal it in a hurry.

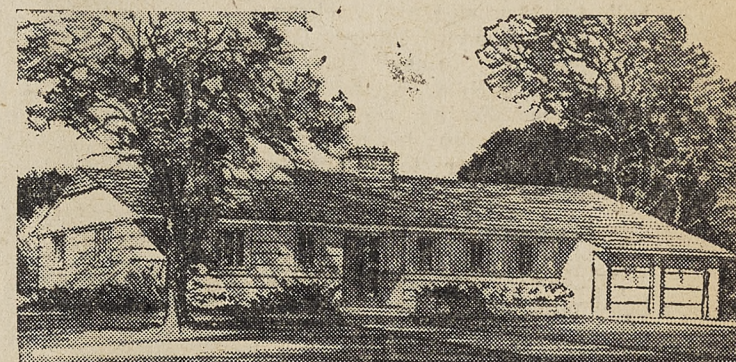

To get the most for your corn crop. You hold it at harvest when prices drop. You store it and sell it later on. When most of the ready supply is gone.

It's safe from rats, clean and dry. You find the quality stays real high. When the corn is sold, then you decide. What else you'd like to store inside.

The Coconut Pie Mystery

Here's a mystery that will have you asking "what dunnit" instead of "who dunnit"! What makes this Coconut Macaroon Pie so mysteriously different? In the making process, it doesn't seem at all out of the ordinary—a mixture of good ingredients; a pie shell. But during the baking process, something quite amazing happens. The ingredients separate—some of them rise to the top and form a wonderful crunchy macaroon-like layer; the rest stay "downstairs" and bake into a velvety custard. What dunnit? Who cares! Just make it and serve it. It's terrific!

Coconut Macaroon Pie

1/2 recipe pie crust
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 egg yolks
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/4 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon almond extract (optional)
1 1/2 cups shredded coconut, cut
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Line a 9-inch pie pan with pastry, rolled 1/4-inch thick. Flute edges. Chill. Add salt to egg yolks and beat until thick and light. Add sugar, 1/2 cup at a time, beating well after each addition. Add milk, butter, lemon juice, and almond extract. Blend well. Fold in coconut and egg whites. Turn into pie shell. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 50 minutes, or until knife inserted comes out clean.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLDTIMERS

From Mrs. Lella McDaniel, Murray, Ky.: I remember when before putting the carpet on the floor, we put a layer of thin wheat straw on the floor first and then put the carpet down and tacked it all around the edges.

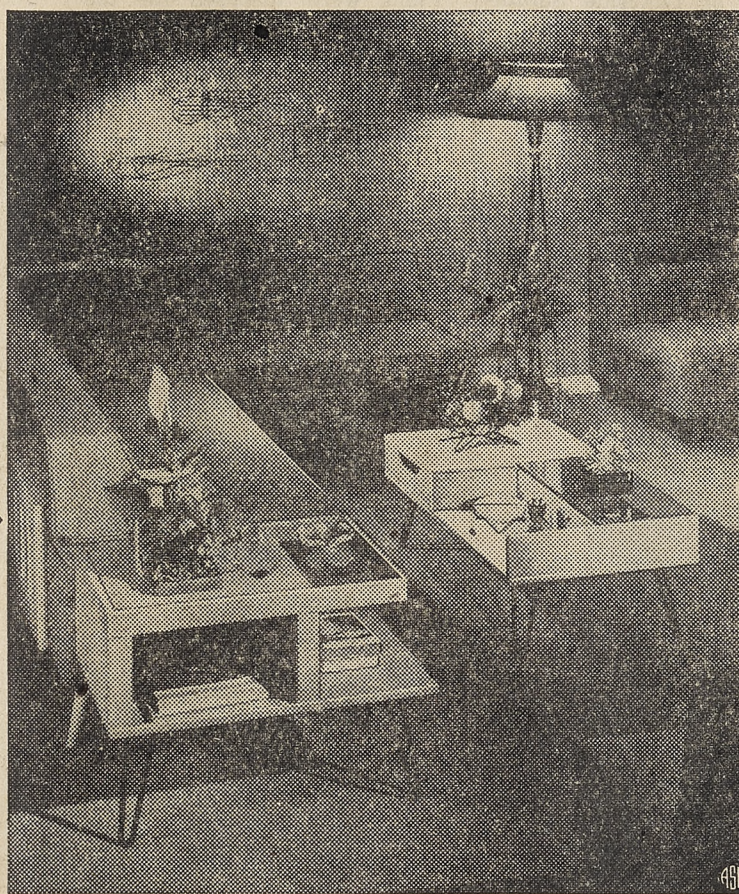

From Flora Dietrich, El Paso, Texas: I remember taking my pail and going out in the fields along the fields along the old rail fences to pick wild strawberries, which my mother made into delicious jam.

From Mrs. Marie Nance, Orange City, Fla.: I am 63 years old. I remember when I was a girl Mother game me 15 cents with which I was to buy at the market a loaf of bread for five cents and two pounds of beef liver for supper for a family of six.

From Mrs. Mary E. O'Dell, Sequim, Wash.: I remember when we had straw ticks to climb into every fall. They were washed and filled with good oat straw. You nearly needed a ladder to get into bed, as our feather ticks were on top of the straw ones.

From Mary Karch, Lakeview, Ohio: I remember kraut making time. We would invite the neighbors in to help. There was a clean spade to chop the cabbage and a wooden barrel with stamper. We children were handed dishes of juicy kraut as a treat.

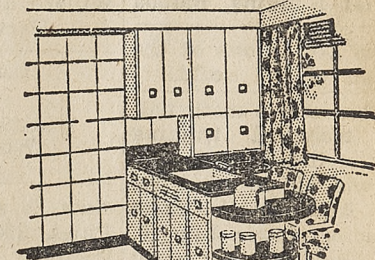

Furniture Fashions

New furniture styles for every room in the house will be shown in stores from coast to coast during Home Fashion Time, Sept. 18-27. To meet the architectural trend toward smaller homes and apartments most of the new units are styled along trim, tailored lines. Metal legs for rich, wood table tops are employed cleverly to achieve the light look so important to small rooms yet without sacrificing the strength and durability of more massive furniture. The Modern tables shown above are mahogany in a light blond finish that emphasizes the natural grain of this fine cabinet wood. The hairpin legs are of black wrought iron. The end table has an unusual look-through glass top section. In the coffee table there's a handy drawer-tray for reading matter you want at your finger-tip, but out of sight. The thick glass top slides so you may easily reach either of the two deep sections. The keynote of all new furniture designs—regardless of the style or period—is functional practicality.

Your Home

By Frances Ainsworth

A friend of mine just bought an old farm-house just outside of town, and I've been having a simply wonderful time helping her to remodel and redecorate. We've just about finished, and I wish you could see personally the actual "miracles" we've wrought with paint and structural glass.

We are especially pleased with the transformation of the old country kitchen. When my friend purchased the house, the kitchen was badly in need of plaster, and totally lacking in the equipment that we've become accustomed to. (Small wonder—the home was over 100 years old, and had been unoccupied for several years!) Today, that same kitchen is sparkling with color... completely modern, and practical. We used Carrara structural glass for all the walls and it's simply beautiful! Reflects every bit of light—and, because it cleans with a whisk of a cloth, my friend finds it especially convenient with her family of boys!

We are so pleased with the kitchen that right now we're in the midst of having the same glass put on the bathroom walls. The room was formerly an old closet and is small, so the glass is really a help in seeming to enlarge the room. It's made just like fine plate glass, you know, and is polished so that it really reflects, giving any room a feeling of spaciousness. The colors are simply gorgeous—we chose a tranquil green for the kitchen, and a beautiful blue for the bathroom. Peter, my friend's husband, likes the effect so well that he's putting a soft beige glass over the mantel—it's really stunning. He says it's very easy to apply, too—goes right over the original surface.

My husband and I are going out to the farm tonight. I want him to see Peter's work—for I've just oads of plans for our house!

Christian Science

In the Lesson-Sermon on "Substance" in all Christian Science Churches Sunday, Mary Baker Eddy declares in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," "The prayer that reforms the sinner and heals the sick is an absolute faith that all things are possible to God,—a spiritual understanding of Him, an unselfed love" (p. 1.)

Jesus exemplified this declaration in restoring the lunatic boy whom his disciples were unable to heal. Jesus said, "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove and nothing shall be impossible unto you. Howbeit this kind goeth not out (Matt. 17:20, 21).

Paul says in the Golden Text from Hebrews (11:1), "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

SUNDOWN ON THE PACIFIC SHORE

A novel about the Great West

BY RENAN PREVOST

Copyright by Renan Prevost, May 1955 All rights reserved

PREFACE

All thru the West there are Ghost Towns. Mostly in the region of the gold mines, of the wild, reckless days of 1849 and after. There are ruins of buildings and etc., which have a story, of the days, of glory and easy wealth for some men; and disappointment and tragic passing for other men.

About every city there are happenings of the past which are not always recorded; some men leave great names for their accomplishments, and land marks are named after them such as Parks, Streets and Schools. Also there are men, the workers who have "done the work" who are usually forgotten, with their passing on from this world. This story is about these men of great courage, supreme courage. Many of them arrived here without funds, and so gainful employment was necessary and that was work—hard work. Work not in line with their skill in a trade or profession.

Ghost towns have their story. So stories exist about buildings, water works, factories, railroads and other endeavors concerned with the earning of a livelihood. These stories become interesting, because they portray a life during the days of the past almost forgotten. Great buildings or public utilities are usually known by the name of the man or corporation which caused the construction. Very seldom is any credit given to an architect, or the men who actually did the work. These were the men—the "brains" who were responsible for the erection of the structure or etc. And so this novel is about those "brains" and how they came West and what their life was like.

There are certain things effecting the economic welfare of men, which cause them to migrate. Generally it is promise of better living conditions or opportunities of easy attainment of wealth, thru land booms, new agricultural crops such as rare fruits, a better livable climate, as an aid to regain health, or as in the case of the colonization of this great country—an escape from persecution or oppression.

Men have been traveling to the West for generations, so we travel West with our characters, starting in 1880.

Any similarity of names or places is merely co-incidental. All characters, dates and places are imaginary. The author has endeavored to use names of his own invention. If by chance the name of a living, or deceased person, or relative has been used, or any similarity thereof, the author offers apologies, for an unavoidable accident, which sometimes happens.

The author wishes to acknowledge, with thanks and sincere appreciation, the help that many old residents of the locale have supplied. Much of the material used has been obtained during many years of taking notes. Many of the yarns, stories and hearsay have been combined to make this novel.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

The Livery Stable Owner.

James Twitcher in the Real Estate Business.

Jerry and the Land for Growing Lemons.

PART ONE

"Does that sound good to you? When you come with the trees, you can hire a few Mexicans, or Japs, to plant and water them. There is a place of twenty acres nearby, a deserted farmhouse which I will sell you cheap. Want to look at it tomorrow?"

"I will think about it, and if interested, I will be here tomorrow at nine A. M. Good afternoon," said Jerry.

"Thank you," offered Twitcher.

Just then a tall man, carrying his hat in his hand, possibly Greek or Italian, asked, upon entering the office, "You Mister Twitcher, da man who sella da orange?"

"Yes, that is I."

"Me like to buy da business of sell orange. How much?"

"Oh, I don't know. How much is it worth to you?"

"Me like you tell where get 'em da orange, where is horse and wagon?"

"Sure, I tell you, but how much will you pay? Do you pay cash?"

"Oh, sure, me pay cash, me sella da banana in New York. Me come to New Town for to do orange business. How much you like for business?"

"You tell me how much it is worth to you," said Twitcher, who had met up with a foreigner who was plenty smart. "You no more sell no orange, promise good, promise true."

"Yes, I will promise not to sell any more oranges," said Twitcher, becoming tired.

"O. K., me pay three hundred dollars, cash."

"Alright. Do you have any money?" asked Twitcher.

"Yes, I have da money here. I put here on table. You no take now. First, you tell where get da orange and da horse and wagon."

"O. K. I buy oranges from the orchards in Paradise and Chollas Valleys. The horse and wagon I rent from the Jones Livery Stable every day for one-fifty, the oranges are five dollars a load, some times six dollars. Sometimes I buy on wholesale market at foot of Sixth Street. If you don't know where the orchards are Jones will let his boy go with you. He knows where they are. If you give Jones some oranges for his kids he can help you get oranges. He knows many of the people who who grow them."

"Thank you; take da money. For good luck I sell you first pail of oranges. Here, I shake your hand, that makes de deal good for me."

"Yes, thanks to you," said Twitcher.

The new orange salesman departed, seemingly happy.

That evening Jerry talked over the deal with the rest of the foursome. They came to the conclusion that it was a good deal. They had read of the great boom of '88 and that how much money was made in the sale of real estate. Great sums of money had been paid for land, and many people came here to make their homes. They came to retire from the hurry of the big cities, came here to live a quiet life among the orange and lemon groves. Here there was an unmatched climate, a climate where furs were not needed to keep warm. Here was a new land of opportunity. Yes, opportunity for the man who could see the possibilities of some day that there would be a great metropolis here. The first port of call on the Pacific Coast. A real land-locked harbor, and with a railroad to the East, it should become a great port for shipment of goods to all parts of the Far East.

Next morning Jerry went to see Twitcher, who said, "Good morning, and what is the verdict?"

"Sure, I will take your deal. Let us go see that other place which is for sale."

Twitcher closed the office, and off they started for the horse and buggy which was awaiting them nearby. After about two hours' drive they arrived at the farm.

"Here is the place, twenty acres, you can purchase it for seven hundred dollars. The house may be repaired." It was a two story house.

"Why did the present owner abandon this place?" asked Jerry.

"The owner was sort of strong minded. He had a shallow well with enough water for household use only. There is no chance of getting irrigation water from wells here. The water is just not here. So he moved away, he would not buy water under any condition. Foolish man," replied Twitcher. "So do not expect to get water in any other way than buying it. After all, that is the most economical method."

"All right, I will take it. When we return we can go to the Title Company and take care of the deal. I will pay cash," said Jerry. I will call the place Lemondale."

"Lomndale, that is a good name—Lemondale. Let us just look about us for a few minutes. Here we are about three hundred feet above sea level. This whole land gently slopes to the south and west. There are not any hills or mountains between here and the ocean. The hills are to North. The gentle wind will always keep this place warm. There is here good air drainage. The hills to the North will keep out the cold winter winds. This is on a shelf-like mesa. I think that this is one of most desirable places in this great The cold places in the state are usually in a deep valley, like the Cajon Valey, where there is no air drainage. It is just like a great pocket. Hot in summer and cold in winter. You see the comparison. Here the climate is truly California-like. Warm, nice and warm in the winter time. This can be the lemon and orange producing center of the U.S.A. Some day we will see many carloads of tropical fruits shipped from here. When there is a railroad directly to East. Yes, here is the place for oranges and lemons," said Twitcher.

Twitcher was well satisfied, having made the deal. His first sale since opening of his office.

"In regard to the trees which I am to buy Florida. When will you put up the money to pay for them?" asked Jerry.

"You telegraph me when you have the details, and I will deposit it to your account at the bank."

"That is agreeable to me."

Passing in town, they heard, "Oranges, da fine oranges, here. Oranges, da nice oranges."

"What is that, a new orange dealer? Is that what I'm hearing?" asked Jerry of Twitcher.

"Oh, sure. I sold him the orange business yesterday. Got a fair price, too. I had to buy his first pail full to bind the deal."

"Oranges! Oranges! The sales cry was heard in the streets. "Oranges, da fine oranges." The same sales cry but by a different person.

"Oh, hello, Mr. Twitcher. How are you today?"

"Oh, just fine, and you?" replied Twitcher.

"Oh, me fine, too. Orange business very good," remarked the Italian, good naturedly, and he proceeded with his usual call of "Oranges! oranges!"

Shortly after the Italian had proceeded on his way, Jerry and Twitcher went to the Title Company and attended to the business, after which Jerry went home to his wife, Dora, to discuss the deal.

"Twitcher was well known in the city. He was admired for his aggressive salesmanship. Whether it be oranges, or real estate, he was always polite and courteous, and always had a ready smile. Never did he argue about politics or religion. He always respected the opinions of his friends, although he did agree with them, in many cases, he was careful to keep his ideas to himself. Among his friends were all classes of citizens from banker to workman. When there was sickness in a poor man's home, and assistance was necessary, he always did what he could. In the orange selling days, when a child was sick he seemed to know it, and if the parents could not afford oranges, he always delivered a ten pound sack full to the door, unknown to the family. These were usually the small sizes. Truly, here was one man who had friends everywhere. Boys and girls knew him as well as the business executives. They respected his kind heartedness and ready understanding of other people. Unemployed workmen were given assistance.

"Good morning, Mr. Twitcher," extended Madam Fournier, as she entered his real estate office next morning.

"Yes," he replied. "Good morning."

"Say, Bub, is there anyone in this town who knows anything about a gas buggy?"

"Yes, go see Charlie at the Elite Livery Stable. His boy is handy at that work. Some people say that if he doesn't quit fooling with gas buggies he will go insane, but confidentially, I think the boy is really smart. Anyhow, he can make them run," answered Twitcher.

"Thanks, Bub," and she went out.

The Madam's hat today was very original. It was a stiff straw hat—a man's hat. Sticking out all around it were feathers petacock tail feathers. It gave the hat the appearance of an umbrella. Around the center were some red roses; and on top were some pansies. What a hat! It was about three feet wide and round like an umbrella. The front was tilted up, a little so the Madam could see. The hats were as gay as she was herself.

Down back of the Livery Stable was the location of the first gas-buggy graveyard. It was not called that, to be sure, but there was a collection of gas-buggies of the days long past. Many of the vehicles deposited there were at one time supposed to be the last word in motor transportation. It could be called the first school of motor learning for Tom, the Livery Stable owner's son. He worked on the gas-buggies, so he could see how and why certain parts worked. It was self-instruction.

Tom was a smart boy, and soon he would be a young man. However, in his boyhood days, he did not mix with the other boys. Some of them would come to the stable to see him, and his collection of "junk," as they called it. Some of the boys had bicycles and they offered Tom the use of one of them so he could learn to ride. But he was always too busy with a gas-buggy. He did not seem interested with a bicycle. He would remark, "Old Indian say, 'white man lazy, sit down to walk.'"

So Tom would not sit down to walk.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

The Gas-Buggy and the Livery Stable Owner's Boy. James Twitcher Goes into the Chamber of Commerce. Chicago Auto Show.

"Hello, Prunes," the name of Tom's boy pal.

"Yes Sir, Mr. Jones; is Tom around?"

"Sure. He is out in the Great Western Motor Emporium."

"Gee, that is some name," replied Prunes.

"Well, sort of," and a streak of tobacco juice landed on the manure pile, and soon became incorporated with that substance in repose.

"Mr. Jones would you sell me a horse blanket safety pin?" asked Prunes.

"Tell me what you are going to do with it and I will give you one."

"Well, Mr. Jones, it is like this. The teacher at school The Garfield School, suggested that all of us who are to graduate should have a graduation class pin. A gold plated pin with the letter G on it in green. It will cost about two dollars, and I don't have the two dollars. And it don't make sense to me to so waste money. A few months after we are out of school and what good will the two dollar pin be? Who will care what school we graduated from?"

"So? Why the safety pin?"

"That pin is all the graduation pin that I need, and if you will let me have one; I will wear it, until school is out. It was the first pin that I ever wore, and it will be very good for this occasion also. You know, Mr. Jones, I don't think that school principal is so smart. Wanting us to spend money for such things as school pins," said Prunes.
